West Valley City Manager Appoints Director of Community and Economic Development

West Valley City – A new Director has been appointed to take the reigns of West Valley City's Community and Economic Development Department. Nicole Cottle, who currently serves as the City's Deputy City Attorney and Deputy City Manager, has been chosen as the Department's New Director.

"This is an opportunity that I am incredibly excited to be given," says Cottle. "I am so grateful for the time that I have spent with the City and for the chance to have been mentored by the incredible leaders I get to work with."

Cottle began working for West Valley City more than ten years ago as an Assistant City Attorney. She has since worked as Deputy City Attorney, and has been appointed a Deputy City Manager. She holds a law degree from the University of Wyoming.

"During her years with West Valley City, Nicole has developed into one of the foremost land use experts in the state," says City Manager Wayne Pyle. "Her intimate knowledge of development projects in the City, combined with her network of contacts, makes her a perfect candidate for this position."

In addition to her responsibilities as Director of Community and Economic Development, she will continue working on special assignment as the City's Legislative Liaison, coordinating the City's legislative priorities during each legislative session.

"I look forward to moving into this position and working on some of the projects that are changing the face of West Valley City," continues Cottle. "I am thrilled to be working with such a talented staff."
